

InteliSecure Names Steven Drew as CEO

Security industry veteran to lead Denver-based managed security services provider (MSSP)

Denver, CO (June 22, 2016) – InteliSecure, a managed security services provider specializing in critical asset protection, today announced it has named Steven Drew as Chief Executive Officer. Drew has more than 16 years of experience in building high-growth companies in the cyber security and managed security services industries.

Drew comes to InteliSecure from USConnect where he also served as CEO. Prior to his role at USConnect, he was Executive Director of Global Operations for Dell SecureWorks. As a member of the senior management team, he was responsible for the overall operations of the company's seven security operations centers (SOCs) located throughout the world. Prior to its merger with Dell, Drew held the position of Chief Operating Officer (COO) at SecureWorks. Drew held various operational roles at LURHQ, including Vice President of Professional Services and Chief Operating Officer before it merged with SecureWorks in 2006.

"InteliSecure is innovating how managed security services are being delivered," said Drew. "The company pioneered managed services for data loss prevention and continues to lead the way in the space. I'm excited to join the company to help guide it to the next stage of its success."

Drew is a member of the board of directors at PhishLabs, holds a Master of Business Administration from Winthrop University, and a Bachelor of Science degree in Computer Engineering from Clemson University.
